

J c - Newspaper Websites

Most of the information in this section has been provided by Arthur Robinson, an American Wodehousean who was for many years a Reference Librarian at the Lewis Library, LaGrange College, LaGrange, Georgia. He has undertaken a great deal of research on such sites in his private capacity, but feels compelled to point out that many of the databases can only be accessed by a library membership or a personal membership of the database concerned, usually requiring the payment of fees. Once accepted, in most data bases the simplest way to start is by an 'author' search, or a 'keyword' 'or full text' search.

The websites listed below generally cover multiple newspapers and journals, and the precise nature of the content of each may differ. Readers are recommended to check carefully the content and potential cost of subscriptions they propose to accept to ensure that they include access to the required publications.

www.BritishNewspaperarchive.co.uk

Relates to hundreds of historic papers from Britain and Ireland (including Tit-Bits, to which PGW contributed)

www.thetimes.co.uk/archive

Relates to The Times and The Sunday Times

www.telegraph.co.uk

Relates to The Daily Telegraph and The Sunday Telegraph

<https://www.gale.com/intl/c/daily-mail-historical-archive>

Relates to the Daily Mail

<https://about.proquest.com/en/products-services/pq-hist-news>

Its archive includes 25 leading US, 12 leading Canadian and 8 significant international papers (including the Guardian, Observer, Irish Times, Scotsman and Times of India); and dozens of regional and specialist newspapers

<https://www.gale.com/intl/punch-historical-archive>

Relates to the now no longer published Punch magazine

<https://www.gale.com/liberty-magazine-historical-archive>

Relates to the now no longer published Liberty magazine

<https://proquest.libguides.com/britishperiodicals>

Relates to hundreds of British periodicals

Should readers use any of these resources and consider them good value, both for the amount of PGW-related content and the cost, if any, of access, please would they provide details to the website editor at websiteeditor@pgwodehousesociety.org.uk.